Introduction

The late 19th century saw many diverse ethnic peoples coming to settle in Toronto. To accommodate them, the Catholic Church opened new parishes in local communities with a clergy equipped to meet the needs of various groups. For instance, the parish of Sacre-Coeur (Sacred Heart) founded about 1888, was the first French language church in Toronto to service the French-Canadians. As well, the Melkite Rite of the Catholic Church was established for Syrian immigrants.

This book indexes the early marriages of twelve parishes to assist local researchers tracing their ancestors. Certainly A.I. Online is already a huge help. However, at times, for one reason or another, some listings do not appear during the researching process. Thus indexes such as the current one here can be of benefit to genealogists.

Added to the work are the early marriages performed by Fr. Edward Gordon (1830-33) which I did not include in an earlier collection on St. Paul's Toronto Church.
